PT ALL TIME FAVS

Blind Your Ponies by Stanley Gordon West
“In this beautiful novel, love and hope persevere even amid the greatest depths of human despair.” -Debbie

The Handmaid's Tale by Margaret Atwood
“This book envisions a future where extremism is coupled with a global health crisis to result in the US becoming a theocratic oligarchy. The story is told from the perspective of a young woman who becomes a victim of that system, and then dares to overcome it.” -Shawn

Fahrenheit 451 by Ray Bradbury
“...explores a dystopian future in which firemen burn books and the homes of people saving them. The story affirms the importance of books for society and our individual lives.” -Lori

“A true and infuriating story. How could neighbors not know that 3 girls were being held hostage for 18 years?”
- Charlotte

“Watched it a million times - first time listening to the book. It's as great as the movie.” -Cindy

“A YA book. Interesting reading and very thoughtful character development.”
-Barbara

NPR Books

What a great resource. Read or listen to book reviews and author interviews. There is a subject search for Finding Books, including the genre of “digit culture.” Who knew? My fav is “3 books” under Reviews. How about Stitch This: Three Not-At-All Cozy Books About Quilting, Miss Lonelyhearts No More: Three Surprising Books of Advice or Muses And More: 3 Books We Owe To Writers' Lovers?
